a finished assignment.

Read something flawed. Question it. Get graded on the questions.

1

Anchor a question

“Do Phones Hurt Test Scores?” — a grade-6 article with a planted trap. Click a sentence, a region of the chart, or a timestamp; all three resolve to one excerpt.

correlation ≠ cause

2

The sock pushes back

It answers with a question, never a verdict. Three turns minimum, five hard-stopped. Hints dock the score, not the turn count.

3

The report card

Five rubric dimensions on Bloom's ladder, each score citing a verbatim student quote.
